

Feminine enhancement

For many women, our breasts symbolise our most feminine physical characteristic. But for various reasons — lack of development, post-pregnancy changes, weight loss — you may be considering breast augmentation. A successful procedure shouldn't necessarily look obviously different ... in fact the success hinges on the doctor's surgical technique and attention to detail. Sydney's Dr Kourosh Tavakoli aims to achieve a natural fullness, with gentle sloping off the chest wall.

Natural cleavage is a must, while the right degree of perkiness can make all the difference.

Dr Tavakoli uses both saline-filled and cohesive silicone-gel implants, adding that the new-generation silicone-gel version is very safe and feels and looks more like a natural breast. The Australian-trained plastic surgeon is also obsessed with minimal scarring. Just another reason why Dr Tavakoli has one of this country's busiest breast implant practices.

Dr Kourosh Tavakoli
Luxe Medispa
2A Mona Road,
Darling Point, Sydney.
(02) 9629 6422;
1300 368 10.
Suite 10, 6 Meridian
Place, Norwest
Business Park,
Baulkham Hills, NSW.
1300 368 107.